

Barbe Chambliss

FINALLY, A BOOK ABOUT HOW TO ACTUALLY MAKE PEACE!

Stories of fifteen amazing individuals I have interviewed all over the world, who have chosen positive action over crippling fear.

WOMEN PEACEMAKERS AND WHAT WE CAN LEARN FROM THEM

Offerings

- Virtual visits with book clubs
- Virtual book launches for book stores, libraries, community radio stations
- Virtual discussion about how to actually make peace with church congregations, study groups, non-profits, alumnae organizations, business
- Peace-making mentorships with young adults, middle adults, and elder adults

Barbe Chambliss has spoken about women peacemakers to audiences in schools, service clubs, universities and professional conventions. She has been a mediator and trauma therapist for over 30 years and the past Director of Center for Conflict Resolutions in Aspen, Colorado. Barbe facilitates Restorative Justice Circles in her community and has worked with war-torn children who survived the Bosnian war. After 9/11 she compiled a "Working Compendium of Non-violent Responses to 9/11." Barbe also taught 500 children and adults how to be mediators.

One part of my book contains a list of 24 lessons I learned from how these women peacemakers do their work. Things like: When overwhelmed by what you can't do, refocus on what you can do. Then proceed with the next right thing.